Leith Anderson

Pope Francis, The Joy of the Gospel: Evangelii Gaudium (Frederick: Word Among Us Press, 2014).
“The Joy of the Gospel (Evangelii Gaudium) is the long-awaited teaching of Pope Francis on the proclamation of the Gospel. Pope Francis is calling upon the Church and the world with encouragement to begin a new chapter in evangelization. This dynamic document is written in the plain, everyday language for which the pope has become famous.” (quoted from Amazon.com)

Bradley R.E. Wright, Christians Are Hate-Filled Hypocrites...and Other Lies You've Been Told (Minneapolis: Bethany House Publishers, 2010).

Wright is a sociologist at the University of Connecticut who reports and analyzes research on the attitudes and actions of American evangelicals and the views of the American public about evangelicals. His secular professional research paints a very different picture of what is often reported and believed about evangelicals and by evangelicals.

H. Richard Niebuhr, Christ and Culture (New York: Harper and Row Publishers, 1951).

This is a series of academic lectures on Christ and culture that was later edited into a durable classic. It has become a platform for writing and discussing the theology of culture from different Christian perspectives.

For the Health of the Nation, National Association of Evangelicals, www.NAE.net.

This booklet presents an overview of primary evangelical commitments to promote a healthy nation, including morality, creation care and government.

Theology of Sex, National Association of Evangelicals, www.NAE.net.

Written by evangelical scholars with research and expertise in biblical studies, theology and human sexuality, this booklet is primarily for pastors and churches seeking a resource for understanding and promoting biblical sexual values and behavior.

Rodney Stark, The Rise of Christianity (New York: HarperSanFrancisco, 1997).

From the perspective of a social historian Stark gives the history of the growth of Christianity in the Roman Empire from Christ through Constantine. His premise is that the beliefs and behavior of Christians moved them from a tiny minority to a majority of the empire.

Richard Lints

Tim Keller, Center Church: Doing Balanced, Gospel-Centered Ministry in Your City (Grand Rapids: Zondervan 2012).
The very best book on practical ecclesiology.

James Hunter, To Change the World: The Irony, Tragedy, and Possibility of Christianity in the Late Modern World (New York: Oxford, 2010).
Thought provoking and careful analysis of all the wrong ways evangelicals have tried to change the culture

Richard Lints, The Fabric of Theology: A Prolegomenon to Evangelical Theology (Grand Rapids: Eerdmans, 1993).
Reframes the task of theology in light of the story of redemption and the context of a postmodern/late modern culture.

Craig Bartholomew and Michael Goheen, The Drama of Scripture: Finding Our Place in the Biblical Story (Grand Rapids: Baker, 2004).
A very good summary of the ways in which Scripture is to be read as a drama rather than as a textbook on morals or guide to healthier living.

Timothy Willard and Jason Lucy, Veneer: Living Deeply in a Surface Society (Grand Rapids: Zondervan, 2011).
A eminently readable account of the shallowness of our culture and the difficulty it presents for living Christianly.

Kevin DeYoung and Greg Gilbert, What is the Mission of the Church?: Making Sense of Social Justice, Shalom, and the Great Commission (Wheaton: Crossway, 2011).
An honest wrestling with the task of the Gospel-centered church against the backdrop of the overwhelming cultural obstacles to the Gospel.

Fred Sanders

Fred Sanders, The Deep Things of God: How the Trinity Changes Everything (Wheaton: Crossway, 2010).
